1. Introduction

This policy has been revised in line with the Department for Education statutory guidance for Relationships Education, relationships and sex education (RSE) and Health Education. This guidance became statutory in September 2020 and can be found here along with its supporting documentation.

Through careful planning and effective delivery of Relationships and Sex Education (RSE) we will fulfil the statutory requirements, whilst protecting the Christian character of the School. Aspects of RSE are taught as an integral part of broad and balanced PSHE provision from YR to Y6. Through inclusive and sensitive teaching, children will know how to be safe and healthy, including online. An understanding of pupil's faith backgrounds and positive relationships between the school and local faith communities provides a constructive context for teaching RSE.

2. Context

2.1 We believe RSE will:

- Put in place key building blocks of healthy, respectful relationships, focusing on family and friendships, in all contexts, including online.
- Give all young people a good quality education about relationships and sexual health, enabling them to make good decisions about their own health and wellbeing, understanding the link between physical and mental health.
- Be seen as early intervention and link with our health and well-being curriculum
- Promote children's self-esteem and emotional well being.
- Help to keep young people safe, their experiences confidential but protect them from abuse, linked to the school's safeguarding policy and procedures.
- Be taught in the context of relationships, enabling them to make informed choices.
- Be based on respect for themselves and for others at home, school, work and in the community.
- Take into account the individual needs, religion, ethnicity, culture, gender, sexual orientation, age, vulnerability group, health or disability, linked to the school's Single Equality Scheme
- Reflect the age and experience of children and young people.
- Engender sensitive debate around issues perceived as contentious within a faith context.
- Actively challenge issues such as sexism, homophobia and gender stereotypes.

2.2 In this way children are able to develop their ideas in a safe and supportive environment, will understand the changes that happen to them as they reach puberty, and know where they can go for help and support.

2.3 RSE at school should be complementary to that given at home, and building on this is an important part of delivering a good education. For this reason, it is important to include parents and carers in the RSE agenda, including the development and review of this policy. It is a statutory requirement that this policy is made available to parents and others.

3. Aims and Objectives

3.1 Relationships and Sex Education contributes to the foundation of PSHE by ensuring that all children:

- Have opportunity to learn about the social and emotional aspects of sex, as well as biological.
- Develop a suitable vocabulary for increasing their communication skills in personal and emotional relationships.
- Discuss the values of love, respect and care.
- Understand concepts of friendship, commitment and responsibility.
- Promote self-image, self-esteem, self-confidence and empathy for others.
- Clarify their views and attitudes, learn the importance of values and individual conscience.
- Reflect on their emotions and relationships in an environment where they don't feel judged, marginalised, penalised or ridiculed and are safe from bullying, discrimination and harassment.
- Appreciate and discuss the value of family life, stable and loving relationships, marriage and the responsibilities of parenthood.
- Understand the influence of the media, clarify values and attitudes, understand risks and consequences (including sexual orientation, abusive relationships, pornography and dangers of the internet) and acquire knowledge to keep them safe and healthy.
- Be aware that changes of a physical, emotional and social nature at puberty are normal in all genders and ensure they feel supported during these changes and have some skills to manage changing emotions confidently and sensitively.
- Know the form and purpose of menstruation and that it is normal and natural, and when to seek additional confidential support.
- Ask questions about reproduction and sexuality in a sensitive atmosphere, where ground rules have been established and must be adhered to.
- Gain knowledge of human reproduction in gradually increasing detail in an age appropriate way to understand positive emotional and mental wellbeing, including how friendships can support mental wellbeing.

3.2 Relationships and Sex Education will help children to:

- Use correct terminology.
- Develop decision making skills, through considering moral dilemmas and having opportunities for critical thinking.
- Develop a critical awareness of different social and peer norms, pressures and values.
- Recognise and challenge stereotypes, for example, in relation to gender.
- Learn to make choices and understand that they have rights, including the right to say 'no'.
- Understand the laws around sexual activity.
- Understand the need for personal hygiene.
- Explore misconceptions about the notion of reproduction.
- Learn about basic external anatomy and internal sexual parts of males and females, sexual intercourse, conception, pregnancy and birth. (This content is normally taught at the end of Year 6.)

- Where it is considered appropriate, learn about LGBT¹. The main purpose of which would be to ensure pupils value our similarities and differences and understand the importance of equality and respect. This will be covered in an integrated way and not as a standalone unit or lesson.

4. Curriculum Guidelines and Organisation

- 4.1 The focus at Rownhams St John's is the teaching of the fundamental building blocks and characteristics of positive relationships, with particular reference to friendships, family relationships, and relationships with other children and with adults.
- 4.2 We teach relationships and sex education through different, co-ordinated aspects of the curriculum. While we carry out the main sex education teaching in our personal, social and health education (PSHE) curriculum. This is usually covered in the latter part of Year 6 as this supports pupils' ongoing emotional and physical development effectively in their transition to secondary school.
- 4.3 We also teach some aspects relationships and sex education through other subject areas (for example, in science), where we feel that they contribute significantly to a child's knowledge and understanding of his or her own body, and how it is changing and developing. However, this should complement rather than duplicate content covered in the national curriculum.
- 4.4 In Key Stage 1, we teach children that animals, including humans, move, feed, grow, and reproduce, and we also teach them about the main parts of the body. Children learn to appreciate the differences between people and how to show respect for each other. In Key Stage 2, we teach about life processes and the main stages of the human life cycle in greater depth.
- 4.5 In Year 6, we place a particular emphasis on health education. We ensure that both boys and girls know how babies are born, how their bodies change during puberty, what menstruation is, and how it affects women. We always teach this with due regard for the emotional development of the children. Teachers do their best to answer all questions with sensitivity and care.
- 4.6 It is important that teachers of parallel classes discuss with their colleagues the boundaries of their planned curriculum, how to go about a simple explanation for issues not deemed suitable for class discussion, and use of language. Sessions may be taught to mixed gender groups and classes, although it may be appropriate to have single sex discussions in moderation.
- 4.7 Facts will be presented in an objective, balanced and sensitive manner set within a clear framework of values and, where this is appropriate, an awareness of laws on sexual behaviour, relationships and young people. All children will have access to RSE but certain aspects will be dealt with on an individual basis in a way that is appropriate to the child's maturity and stage of development.
- 4.8 All of the teacher input, videos and resource materials that the children encounter have been chosen very carefully, after looking extensively at what is currently available and are designed to strongly reinforce the fact that everyone develops at different times, at different rates and with different results.
- 4.9 No resources should be used without prior consultation with the PSHE Co-ordinator who is responsible for checking their suitability.

- 4.10 The religious backgrounds of all pupils should be taken into account in the planning of RSE teaching. As a Church of England School, the distinctive faith perspective on relationships should be taught, with balanced debate on issues that may be seen as contentious. This must be done within the context of the Equality Act 2010 and adequately reflect the law, particularly to ensure there is age appropriate discussion on sexual orientation and gender reassignment, which are protected characteristics.
- 4.11 The significance of other factors, such as any special educational needs or disabilities of their pupils must all be given due consideration when planning lesson content.
- 4.12 Before planning, teachers should read documents referred to at the beginning of this policy which are available online or through the school internal systems.

By the end of Year 6:

Families and people who care for me	Pupils should know: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● that families are important for children growing up because they can give love, security and stability ● the characteristics of healthy family life, commitment to each other, including in times of difficulty, protection and care for children and other family members, the importance of spending time together and sharing each other's lives ● that others' families, either in school or in the wider world, sometimes look different from their family, but that they should respect those differences and know that other children's families are also characterised by love and care ● that stable, caring relationships, which may be of different types, are at the heart of happy families, and are important for children's security as they grow up ● that marriage represents a formal and legally recognised commitment of two people to each other which is intended to be lifelong ● how to recognise if family relationships are making them feel unhappy or unsafe, and how to seek help or advice from others if needed
Caring friendships	Pupils should know <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● how important friendships are in making us feel happy and secure, and how people choose and make friends ● the characteristics of friendships, including mutual respect, truthfulness, trustworthiness, loyalty, kindness, generosity, trust, sharing interests and experiences and support with problems and difficulties ● that healthy friendships are positive and welcoming towards others, and do not make others feel lonely or excluded ● that most friendships have ups and downs, and that these can often be worked through so that the friendship is repaired or even strengthened, and that resorting to violence is never right ● how to recognise who to trust and who not to trust, how to judge when a friendship is making them feel unhappy or uncomfortable, managing conflict, how to manage these situations and how to seek help or advice from others, if needed

Respectful relationships	Pupils should know <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● the importance of respecting others, even when they are very different from them (for example, physically, in character, personality or backgrounds), or make different choices or have different preferences or beliefs ● practical steps they can take in a range of different contexts to improve or support respectful relationships ● the conventions of courtesy and manners ● the importance of self-respect and how this links to their own happiness ● that in school and in wider society they can expect to be treated with respect by others, and that in turn they should show due respect to others, including those in positions of authority ● about different types of bullying (including cyberbullying), the impact of bullying, responsibilities of bystanders (primarily reporting bullying to an adult) and how to get help. • what a stereotype is, and how stereotypes can be unfair, negative or destructive ● the importance of permission-seeking and giving in relationships with friends, peers and adults.
Online relationships	Pupils should know <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● that people sometimes behave differently online, including by pretending to be someone they are not ● that the same principles apply to online relationships as to face-to-face relationships, including the importance of respect for others online including when we are anonymous ● the rules and principles for keeping safe online, how to recognise risks, harmful content and contact, and how to report them ● how to critically consider their online friendships and sources of information including awareness of the risks associated with people they have never met • how information and data is shared and used online
Being safe	Pupils should know <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● what sorts of boundaries are appropriate in friendships with peers and others (including in a digital context) ● about the concept of privacy and the implications of it for both children and adults; including that it is not always right to keep secrets if they relate to being safe ● that each person's body belongs to them, and the differences between appropriate and inappropriate or unsafe physical, and other, contact ● how to respond safely and appropriately to adults they may encounter (in all contexts, including online) whom they do not know ● how to recognise and report feelings of being unsafe or feeling bad about any adult ● how to ask for advice or help for themselves or others, and to keep trying until they are heard ● how to report concerns or abuse, and the vocabulary and confidence needed to do so ● where to get advice e.g. family, school and/or other sources

5. Role of parents

- 5.1 The school is well aware that the primary role in children's sex education lies with parents and carers. We wish to build a positive and supporting relationship with the parents of children at our school through mutual understanding, trust and cooperation.
- 5.2 In promoting this objective, we will consult parents on the school's sex education policy and practice, offering a dialogue between home and school so that parents are clear about what is being taught and sharing with them the resources used.
- 5.3 We arrange a meeting for all parents and carers of children in Year 6 to discuss this particular programme of lessons, to explain what the issues are and how they are taught, and to see the materials the school uses in its teaching. All relevant teaching staff are present at this time and parents are invited to ask questions as part of the meeting.
- 5.4 We aim to ensure dialogue and partnership with parents to ensure that the teaching in school supports the key messages that parents and carers may give to children at home. We believe that, through this mutual exchange of knowledge and information, children will benefit from being given consistent messages about their changing body and their increasing responsibilities.
- 5.5 The school retains the right to mandate that children are present in sessions covering aspects of the National Curriculum.
- 5.6 The Governing Body will take such steps as are reasonably practicable to ensure that any provision is in accordance with current guidelines laid down by the Government. They will also pay regard to representations made to them by anyone connected with the community served by Rownhams St John's Primary School. In addition, they will, in consultation with the Headteacher, take advice received from Health Authorities, religious and ethnic minority groups.

6. Right to withdraw

- 6.1 Parents have the right to withdraw their child from all or part of the sex education programme that we teach in our school. If a parent wishes their child to be withdrawn from sex education lessons, they should discuss this with the Headteacher, and make it clear which aspects of the programme they do not wish their child to participate in. Where appropriate, this discussion can include the child.
- 6.2 If a pupil is excused from sex education, it is the school's responsibility to ensure that the pupil receives appropriate, purposeful education during the period of withdrawal.
- 6.3 Parents do not have the right to withdraw their children from relationships education. This is compulsory for all children (under sections 34 & 35 of the 'Children's and Social Work Act 2017')

7. Confidentiality

- 7.1 Teachers conduct sex education lessons in a sensitive manner and in confidence. However, if a child makes a reference to being involved, or likely to be involved in sexual activity, then the teacher will take the matter seriously and deal with it as a matter of child protection.

- 7.2 Teachers will respond in a similar way if a child indicates that they may have been a victim of abuse. In these circumstances the teacher will talk to the child as a matter of urgency. If the teacher has concerns, they will draw their concerns to the attention of the Designated Safeguarding Lead or a Deputy Designated Safeguarding Lead. Any concerns will then be managed according to the school's relevant Safeguarding and Child Protection Policies, which can be found on our website here.

8. The role of the Headteacher

- 8.1 It is the responsibility of the Headteacher to ensure that both staff and parents are informed about our Relationships and Sex Education Policy and that it is implemented effectively.
- 8.2 It is also the Headteacher's responsibility to ensure that members of staff are given sufficient training, so that they can teach effectively and handle difficult questions and issues with sensitivity. Given the ease of access to the internet, children with unanswered questions may access inappropriate sources of information.
- 8.3 The Headteacher ensures that all adults who work with children on these issues are aware of the school policy, and that they work within this framework.
- 8.4 The Headteacher and PSHE Leader will monitor this policy on a regular basis and reports to governors, when requested, on its effectiveness.

9. Monitoring and review

- 9.1 The Relationships and Sex Policy is reviewed throughout by staff as they teach and assess relevant aspects.
- 9.2 The Standards Committee of the governing body monitors our Relationships and Sex Policy on an annual basis through PHSE curriculum review. This committee reports its findings and recommendations to the Full Governing Body, as necessary, if the policy needs modification.
- 9.3 The governing body will give serious consideration to any concerns from parents about the sex education programme and will be monitored as appropriate.

APPENDIX 1 - Curriculum Coverage

Year R

- Manage personal hygiene routines in school, talk about how they have changed since they were a baby, use names for the parts of their bodies they can see.
- Features of healthy relationships, including on-line, family relationships within a variety of contexts

Year 1/2

- Know that they have rights over their own bodies.
- Recognise and name feelings, including feelings associated with change. Begin to learn and manage feelings positively and effectively.
- Reflect on how they have changed since starting school.

Years 3 – 4

- Recognise the impact of feelings on others.
- Recognise feelings in different situations and be able to express them in different ways.
- Respect other people's feelings, decisions, rights and bodies.
- Know the different changes that take place in human life. Understand the human life cycle.

Year 5

- Describe the changes their bodies will go through at puberty. Understand that puberty will have an impact on themselves, their emotions and relationships.

Year 6

- Describe the changes the body goes through at puberty. Understand that body changes are a preparation for sexual maturity. Decide who has access to their bodies and demonstrate an understanding that some physical contact is unacceptable.
